

Casual Separates

Rebekah Goldstein

February 22 – March 21, 2012

Opening reception: Friday, February 22, 8pm-10pm

Casual Separates is an exhibition of new paintings and cut-outs by Rebekah Goldstein. The cut-outs, composed of colorful canvas and wood pieces, evoke a similar tension between forms found in Goldstein's large-scale abstract paintings. Angular, geometric forms frame, crop, and cling to one another. Both the canvas fragments and the stark schemas painted onto them rest in a tenuous liminal space, playfully confusing distinctions between painted space and actual depth. Flirting with completion, the works resist an altogether stasis.

Rebekah Goldstein is a painter living in San Francisco. She recently graduated from California College of the Arts, where she received an MFA. She currently works out of her studio in the Mission District of San Francisco.
