

City Limits // Justin Margitich : Circuiting

March 13, 2014

A solo show of new work by Margitich, the third show in this new (excellent) Oakland gallery. These works are all of a single body of work, paintings in a peculiar palette of pastels made on fine sandpaper in two scales. The works are in pure stabs of color, gradated one after the other to create a peculiar sense of three dimensional space and form. Coupled with two rectangular sections of wall painted in similar shades to the works, this is a very successful paintings show. Each work takes the limited vocabulary allotted and creates something new, potholes, caves, pseudo language etc. Go to this gallery, the last day of this show is Saturday.

File under: city limits harbour short justin margitich